109TH CONGRESS

VETERANS STATUS

This year's Congress is starting to take shape. On the surface it doesn't appear to change much from the 108th Congress, but underlining changes are likely to put a unique stamp on this Congress including some significant committee chairmanships changing hands. A whopping, record-level, 74% of this year's Congress has no military experience. Only 8 of the 49 incoming freshman have military experience. This is buoyed only by the fact many of the professional staff have more military experience the ever before.

NATIONAL GUARD EXPERIENCE IN THE 109TH CONGRESS

Only two new members of the Senate come with National Guard experience. However, Johnny Isakson is not new to the Congress who is coming from the House. He has a strong interest in appropriations, taxes, and defense issues. Mike Sodrel from is a staunch republican with time in the Indiana National Guard from 1966-1973. His interests lie in assignments to the Transportation and Infrastructure and Agricultural committees. Those with Guard experience comprise 18 Republicans, 4 Democrats, and 1 Independent.
